MAY CATCH JERSEY BASS TO-DAY.

Opening of the Season on Lakes That Have Been Well Stocked.

The New Jersey Fish and Game Commission has been paying considerable attention recently to stocking the lakes of that state with fish from Lake Erie and Game and Fish Protector George Riley has had charge of the transportation.

The consignments have consisted chiefly of lake bass, wall-eyed pike, white bass, bluegill, channel catfish, but some strange ones, such as catfish, crappies, and a few rock bass have found their way into the tanks and cans and have been distributed with the others.

Greenwood Lake, which is one-half in New York State and the other half in New Jersey, has probably been more favored in the distribution than any other spot on the map, even more so than Lake Hopewell.

The mistake of putting in fingerlings has been avoided in recent years, and only mature fish have been carried in the cans and tanks. Over thirty years ago several million lake trout were distributed in New Jersey waters by the United States Fish Commission without results beyond fattening and pleasing the lake bass, pickerel and yellow perch, except in one instance, where the lakies seem to have escaped extermination.

The exception is Sterling Pond, on the tip of Sterling Mountain, near Tuxedo, one or two lake trout have been taken from this pond every year in the past decade, but there is no authentic report of any having been caught elsewhere.

Two years ago Game and Fish Protector Riley found an eight-pound muskallonge in one of the tanks of the fish car and let it go into Greenwood Lake without saying anything to anybody about it. A few days ago when returning from Erie, Pa., with a big consignment of fish for Greenwood Lake he found another fish of the same species. It weighed 10½ pounds and was in excellent condition at the end of the trip.

There was nothing for him to do but release it in Greenwood Lake and he did so with some degree of apprehension in regard to the effect of its appetite upon the other residents of the lake. Still it may be hoped that the two noble black spotted pike will meet and multiply if they happen to be compatible.

Greenwood Lake is in parts particularly suited to the needs of all the kinds of fish which have been placed in it. There are places where the water is deep and cool and others where there is weedy hiding for fish that like the shelter of the broad-leaved water plants.

There are mud holes to please the catfish and deep rocky shores and coves to suit the bass family. There is room enough for all. In fact Greenwood Lake is one of the most remarkable fishing waters in the East.

It has been fished by expert anglers, netted by poaching natives, robbed by net-line fishermen, speared over by jack-lighters for twenty-five years and season after season has given up carloads of bass and pickerel, and every one is engaged for the opening of the bass season today.

There will be a crowd of anglers there and most of them have made advance arrangements for boats, bait and hotel accommodations. The train schedule will be changed on the opening day and may not things up for some who contemplate making the trip to-day.

HELPS THE POOR TO LIVE WELL.

Good Work in Practical Instruction That a New York Society is Doing.

The People's University Extension Society of New York has completed its fourth year of work for the improvement of social conditions in this city. The story of its progress is told in its annual report just issued.

It is the aim of the society to help the hundreds of small local organizations which are struggling to aid the people around them by providing for these little societies the trained teachers which their work most requires. Enthusiasm, philanthropy, say that they know nothing better or more timely than this aim.

How much the poor themselves appreciate what is being done is seen in their patient desire for the practical knowledge given. It is not unusual for working girls to attend the evening classes, suppers, because they have not had time to go home to eat a meal first.

Women just come from the hard labor of remodeling offices after business hours are found at these same classes. Instruction in dressmaking and household economy means much to them in their struggle to feed and clothe their children on small means.

Evening courses for mothers on hygiene, sanitation and the care of children form the largest department of the society's work. Then there is instruction in elementary manual training, for instance in basket weaving and chair caning for boys and girls, helping them to earn a living and keep their parents out of mischief.

Sewing and dressmaking classes are also held and are in great demand. Especially they awaken enthusiasm among the grown girls and married women.

"I wish the teaching of this useful, old-fashioned, womanly accomplishment could be increased a hundred fold," one of the teachers wrote to the society after short experience in her work.

A high thronging the cooking class the best thing in the society's work. His wife worked in a store before he married. The result was that it took all his wages to buy canned food, and yet the couple never had anything fit to eat till the wife went to cooking school.

For the girls working in shops and factories, physical culture classes are held. The girls like them, and gain noticeably in health and strength.

Some of them refused to take any interest in a former popular evening entertainment, the date of which coincided with a health lecture, till it was arranged to give the lecture on another night.

Lecture courses in civics and American history designed to inspire a stronger sense of civic responsibility in the individual are given. For these and for all other kinds of instruction it offers the society is constantly receiving more appeals than it can possibly satisfy with the means at its disposal.

Work is supported entirely by voluntary contributions, and an appeal is made by Secretary J. Eugene Whitely of 105 East Seventeenth street, for further aid to extend the work.

Five Bargain Counters—Loaded With Cut Glass and China.

People who hug the notion that there is "something the matter" with goods that get to the Bargain Counter haven't kept in touch with the Macy methods—the modern, original, aggressive policy that reverses tradition. This week we bring five bargain counters into play. Details of the merchandise are presented below. Every item represents not only quality and beauty, but price-cheapness that has no parallel anywhere. That's our idea of what should go the bargain table way. Values to rehabilitate a good, strong, business expression which has lost force by abuse.

Prices of Mattresses Reduced.—Annex.

Mattresses made in our own factory by our own people. No guess about what goes into them. No somebody else's say-so. We don't give you a second-hand guarantee. Thrift and accuracy inspire us to make the Mattresses we sell. The results are fine quality—lower prices than others ask. But during this sale our prices dip lower than ever. For example:—

Mattresses made of sterilized South American hair and black drawings—from manes and tails of horses—clean, non-absorbent and odorless, covered with A. C. A. ticking, one or two parts.

$10.84 instead of $13.18—3 ft. ft.
$13.24 instead of $16.12—3½ ft. ft.
$14.54 instead of $17.67—4½ ft. ft.

$12.92 instead of $15.74—4 ft. ft.
$14.54 instead of $17.67—4½ ft. ft.

Mattresses made of pine fibre—the fine needles of long-leaved Southern pines—clean, springy, very durable and healthful.

$2.99 instead of $3.67—3 ft. ft.
$3.49 instead of $4.28—3½ ft. ft.
$3.84 instead of $4.67—4 ft. ft.
$3.99 instead of $4.99—4½ ft. ft.

"Macylace" Mattresses.—Annex.

The "Macylace" Mattress is sanitary and odorless. Made of scientifically sterilized horsehair, entirely free from admixtures. It is non-absorbent, healthful, elastic and springy, durable and naturally restful. Made in all sizes, in one or two parts, and covered in fancy ticking of your own choosing. It is laced, thereby doing away with the objectionable features of tufting. The laces may be tightened or loosened, rendering the Mattresses harder or softer, as desired. The imperial edges are great shape retainers.

$21.84 for 3 feet size.
$24.72 for 3½ feet size.

$27.31 for 4 feet size.
$30.27 for 4½ feet size.

These Mattresses afford the largest amount of physical comfort and they are serviceable, besides.
